INDIANA EDUCATOR CALLED TO STAND IN 'BRAIN TRUST' CASE

Dr. Wm. A. Wirt Charged 'Trustees' with Fomenting Revolution

ROOM IS CROWDED

Authorize Investigation Of Claim Regarding Statement About Roosevelt

By William S. Neal
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Apr. 10.—Dr. Wm. A. Wirt, Gary, Indiana, educator, who startled the country by charging "brain trusters" with fomenting revolution was called to the witness stand before a Congressional Investigating Committee today.

In a room so crowded with spectators, cameras, broadcasters and newspaper men, that voices were lost in the din, Chairman Bulwinkle, Democrat, of North Carolina, opened the long awaited hearing. Representative Arnold, Democrat, of Illinois, read the resolution authorizing investigation of Dr. Wirt's claim that "brain trusters" told him that President Roosevelt "is only the Kerensky of this revolution."

WASHINGTON, Apr. 10.—(INS)—William A. Wirt, mild-mannered superintendent of the Gary, (Ind.) Schools, faced a demand by a special House investigating committee today to name the "brain trusters" who told him that "President Roosevelt is only the Kerensky of this revolution."

Democratic leaders, who reluctantly yielded to Rep. Bulwinkle's demand for an investigation, appeared bolder as the time for Dr. Wirt to appear neared, and were ready to charge him with contempt if he refused to name the "brain trusters" to whom he claims to have talked.

The program of the committee was to be limited to a demand that Dr. Wirt tell of his purported trip here last Summer, give the names of those who told him of a plan to overthrow the present social order and details of the conversations.

Chairman Bulwinkle was considering a plan to add a dramatic touch to the proceedings. He indicated they may be halted if Dr. Wirt names the "brain trusters" and a summons issued immediately for them.

New Britain Woman Sues For Divorce From Spouse

DOYLESTOWN, Apr. 10.—Charging her husband with cruel and barbarous treatment and desertion, Mrs. Annie R. Diver filed a libel in divorce in the Court of Common Pleas here, today, against her husband, William M. Diver.

According to the libel, they were married January 5, 1927.

The libellant is a resident of New Britain, and her husband's address was given as Lansdale.

Mrs. Diver alleges that her husband made life intolerable for her soon after their marriage and that it continued until November 7, 1928.

TRUCK DRIVER HURT

The driver of a truck was treated at Harriman Hospital, yesterday afternoon for slight injuries, following a crash at Edgington. The injured was Vincent DiBelardino, 2721 Somerset street, Philadelphia. The DiBelardino truck, it is stated, was following the automobile of Paul Dean, Andalusia, up Bristol Pike. Dean is said to have slowed down when a dog crossed the thoroughfare, and his car was struck in the rear by the truck. DiBelardino was pinned behind the wheel, but was discharged after treatment at the hospital. Dean was unhurt.

PLAN TWO BAKE SALES

Two bake sales are to be conducted by the Daughters of America on Saturday, one at Weik's store, Dorrance street, and another at Watson's store, Farragut avenue. The sales of good things will commence at 11 a. m., and the proceeds will swell the New York Club fund.

SHEPHERDS BANQUET

Shepherds Delight Lodge, No. 1, Shepherds of Bethlehem, will mark its 36th anniversary with a banquet on Monday evening, April 16th, at F. P. A. hall. All members wishing reservation for themselves or friends, are asked to phone 3135, 3272 or 2820, not later than April 14th.

POSTPONEMENT

The play "Where's Grandma?" sponsored by the Bristol B. Y. P. U., which was to have been given tonight has been postponed until April 17th.

Wedding Ceremony Occurs At Parsonage In Yardley

YARDLEY, Apr. 10.—A quiet wedding was solemnized Saturday afternoon at four o'clock in the Methodist parsonage when Miss Eleanor H. Tilton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Worrell, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Worrell.

The bride, who wore a blue gown with hat to match, had as her only attendant, Miss Mae Tomlinson, Richboro. Miss Tomlinson wore a gown of taupe, with hat to match. The bouquets were of sweet peas.

Thomas Longstreet Bristol, was best man.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Francis C. Thomas, pastor of Yardley Methodist Church.

SAYS PEDESTRIANS FAIL TO USE CARE

Metzger Cites the Causes Which Help to Increase Accidents

DO NOT USE JUDGMENT

HARRISBURG, Apr. 10.—Leon D. Metzger, Secretary of Revenue, today said pedestrians unnecessarily increase the accident odds against them by their failure to exercise reasonable good judgment and caution.

"As long as motorists and pedestrians have occasion to use the same thoroughfares there will be accidents involving the two, and it is equally certain that as long as pedestrians fail to follow even the simplest rules for their own safety these accidents will be especially numerous," Secretary Metzger said.

"Take, for instance," the simple matter of crossing at street intersections protected with signals. Accident records show that by the too-frequent practice of disregarding such signals the pedestrian automatically increases four times the odds against him.

At Crossings

"Last year 183 pedestrians were injured, three fatally, while crossing with the signal at such intersections. On the other hand, 656 were injured—and the fatalities leaped to 27—while crossing against the signal. In two months this year twenty-eight persons were injured, two fatally, crossing with the signal while 137 were injured, six fatally, while crossing against the signal.

"In other words, pedestrians who flaunted the signals simply piled up the odds against them and, in effect, deliberately assumed responsibility for the increased danger they incurred.

"The same situation exists in the rural districts where accident statistics emphasize the danger of walking along a highway with, rather than against, the traffic. Recent statistics show that the pedestrian who turns his back to automobiles instantly doubles the accident odds against him. Last year 430 pedestrians were injured and eighty-five were killed while walking on rural roads with their backs to traffic. These totals are twice as large as those in cases where the pedestrian used forethought and walked facing oncoming traffic. In the latter type of accident 229 pedestrians were injured and 58 killed.

Facing Traffic

"In this connection it is worthwhile to note that safety regulations which direct pedestrians to walk along the left side of the road, facing traffic, dictate that procedure so that the man on foot not only can see cars approaching him but can, if necessary, step out of the way if the motorist does not see him or cannot change his course rapidly enough. The full effect of this safety measure is lost if pedestrians simply walk facing traffic and make no other effort to avoid an accident.

"In this situation there are frequently conditions where the pedestrian commands a better view than the motorist of the impending danger. This is particularly true when two cars pass at night or in foggy or rainy weather. At such times a sensible pedestrian will lose no time in giving space for two-way traffic."

ELECT OFFICERS

At the annual meeting of the Bristol-Burlington Rifle and Pistol Club, Inc., the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President, Ralph Ratcliffe, Bristol; vice president, George W. Lippincott, Mt. Holly, N. J.; secretary, William Waitz, Burlington, N. J.; treasurer, Donald Moyer, Bristol; executive officer, Lloyd Cross, Delanco, N. J.

AUXILIARY TO MEET

A meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Newportville Fire Company will be held tonight in the fire station at eight o'clock.

CARD PARTY

Catholic Daughters of America will hold a card party tonight in the Knights of Columbus Home, Mulberry and Radcliffe streets, at 8:30. The games to be played are bridge, five hundred and pinocle, according to Gertrude Roche, chairlady, who also has arranged a large number of prizes.

ANNUAL CAMPAIGN TO MAINTAIN MORRISVILLE NURSING SERVICE OPENS; NEARLY 50 WOMEN TO SOLICIT FUNDS AT HOMES, BUSINESS PLACES

Sum of $1,100 Needed To Continue Work During Coming Year

Provides Trained Nurse In Home On Hourly Rate; Advice Also Given

MORRISVILLE, Apr. 10.—Nearly 50 local women yesterday began solicitation throughout this borough and vicinity in an effort to raise $1,100 with which to continue the community nursing service for the coming year.

Every home and business place is to be visited by those seeking to obtain the needed amount.

The community nursing service is a part of the American Red Cross work here and provides a trained nurse in the home on an hourly rate in time of illness when a physician is in attendance and hospital care is not needed. Pre-natal care and advice are also given. Health supervision of the child is followed up to and through the school age. A well-baby conference is held every week in the Community House and the nurse assists in the health program of the schools.

This service is needed now more than ever before and a generous response to this appeal is hoped for. The money is all expended here and is spent carefully.

The estimated expenses for the year are $2,162. This includes the salary of the nurse, $1,500; supplies, $75; compensation insurance, $4; contribution to Community House in lieu of rent, $120; printing and postage, supplies and telephone, $53; depreciation of automobile including insurance, gas, oil and minor repairs, $3.25; supplies for public health and nursing, $25; relief work, $50; home service relief for ex-service men, $10.

The source of income is as follows: Insurance companies, $400; Red Cross Roll Call refund, $153.12; monthly card parties, $175; cash on hand, $351.94; balance needed to complete budget, $1,081.94.

The finance committee in charge of the appeal follows: Miss Isabel MacPherson, chairman; Mrs. William Burgess, Mrs. Helen E. Howe, Mrs. Francis Kerr and Mrs. J. A. Schermerhorn.

The following is a list of the solicitors and the territory assigned to each:

Business houses in Morrisville, Dorothy Melville; business houses in Trenton, Mrs. Uno Malmstrom; Arborea section, Isabel MacPherson; William H. Moon Company and employees, Mrs. Howard Moon; Edgehill Gardens, excluding Pennsylvania avenue, from Ferry road to Ridge road, Mrs. W. H. Romine, Mrs. Alex Hamilton; Pennsylvania avenue, from Ferry road to Trenton avenue, Mrs. Arthur H. Paul, Jr.; River road from Trenton avenue to the Reading Railroad bridge, Mrs. Edmund S. Lovett; Lafayette avenue, from Pennsylvania avenue to West Hendrickson avenue, Mrs. Joseph Schermerhorn; Crown street from Trenton avenue to High and avenue, Eleanor McTamney; Highland avenue and Bridge road, Mrs. Harrison Voorhees; Fairview avenue, Miss Agnes Rule.

Trenton avenue, from Crown street to Lafayette avenue, Mrs. Floyd Platt; West Trenton avenue, from Lafayette including Highland Park, Mrs. Robert W. Stockham, Mrs. Clara Neeld; Crown street, from Trenton avenue to Hendrickson avenue, including Hillside avenue, Mrs. Gordon White; Crown street, from Hendrickson avenue to Palmer street, Mrs. Ethel Haines; east and west side of North Pennsylvania avenue, from Trenton avenue to Palmer street, Mrs. Lawrence Grim; east and west side of North Pennsylvania avenue, from Palmer street to Union street, Mrs. C. C.

GIRLS' GROUP SEEKS OFFICIALS FOR DIVISION

Officers Needed To Head The Activities For Youth Week, Here

BOYS MAKE PROGRESS

An effort was made last night to organize for girls' participation in Youth Week which is to be held here April 28th to May 5th.

A group of women interested met in the Legion Home and discussed the project from various angles. Officers were not chosen at the meeting.

Richard W. French and W. E. Dougherty told of what the boys' division had done and to what extent this organization had planned for the girls' participation.

Miss Margaret Pope was named as chairman of a nominating committee to select a group of candidates for officers of the organization.

The committee handling the boys' division also met last night and reviewed the progress made. Various committees reported and Walter P. Leedom, who is to be the marshal of the parade outlined tentative plans for the street demonstration.

Public Ledger To End Career On Sunday Next

The Public Ledger, of Philadelphia, after a career of 98 years is to cease publication after Sunday, April 15th.

This was announced today in the following statement issued by the publishers:

On Monday, April 16, the morning and Sunday Public Ledger will be combined with the morning and Sunday Philadelphia Inquirer, the combined newspaper being published at The Inquirer plant.

All of the outstanding features of the morning and Sunday Public Ledger will continue to appear in The Inquirer, and those classifications of news in which the Ledger has specialized will be as fully covered in The Inquirer.

All of the Comics now appearing in both Sunday papers will be continued in a 24-page full color Comic Section, and the 20-page Complete Novel now issued weekly with the Sunday Public Ledger will be issued with The Sunday Inquirer.

The Evening Public Ledger will continue to be published from the Ledger plant.

ASHTABULA MAY BECOME MORE IMPORTANT PORT

Civic Leaders Believe It Will Be Outstanding Port Of Great Lakes

ON CANAL PROJECT

(Note: This is the sixth of a series of articles on the canal and flood control projects under consideration in Pennsylvania and Ohio.)

By James C. Kinkaid
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

ASHTABULA, O., Apr. 10.—(INS)—Iron ore—huge chunks in huge piles, scores of feet in height—rise into the air along the docks of this harbor, one of the most important ports on the Great Lakes.

Today, Ashtabula looms as a still greater important cog in the economic wheel of industrial life in Ohio and Pennsylvania.

Tomorrow? Civic leaders contend that some time in the not far-distant future Ashtabula will be the outstanding port of the Great Lakes as far as coal and iron ore transportation is concerned. For, they point out, should a canal be constructed between here and Pittsburgh, Ashtabula would become a key-point for lake as well as canal shipments.

This canal, if constructed, would serve one of the richest iron and steel manufacturing districts in the world, that of Youngstown and Pittsburgh. It would also serve New Castle and Niles, Pennsylvania and Ohio steel sub-centers respectively.

On leaving the Ohio River, the canal would pass through four locks and dams in the Beaver River, six in the Mahoning River as far north as Niles and three more in Mosquito Creek. At this point the summit of the canal would be reached at an approximate altitude of 900 feet.

From this point to Lock No. 14, at the northern end of the summit, the distance is 39 miles. Twenty-one miles of this channel would necessarily be canalized. From this point on the canal would drop rapidly in a distance of 12 miles, to lake level. Ten locks, eight of which would have lifts of 31 to 32 feet, would be required in this reach of the canal. The total distance from Pittsburgh to Lake Erie by this route would be 101.75 miles. This distance has caused the proposed canal to be known as the "short-route."

According to army engineers, the critical section of the route lies in the Youngstown area where the Mahoning Valley is congested with railroad tracks and industrial developments that it may prove excessively expensive to obtain even the 250-foot minimum width suggested for any of the proposals. Even by utilizing the entire space between important rail lines on both banks of the stream with an extensive retaining wall structure to support them, there are many points in this district where 200 feet would probably be the absolute maximum obtainable.

Something over 100 bridges would be involved in the project, many of which would have to be entirely replaced and most of them materially altered.

There would be 24 locks in the entire system, those in the northern reach of the canal having much higher reaches than those in the South. The locks throughout the canal would be somewhat higher, under present plans, than in any other of the three systems being considered and the distance between locks would be somewhat shorter also.

(In the next article, what Youngstown thinks of the value of the Ashtabula-Pittsburgh canal route.)

CANNON CASE CONTINUES

Washington, D. C., Apr. 10.—Eleven men and a lone woman who swore they held no religious, political or wet or dry prejudices, settled in their seats in the District of Columbia Supreme Court today to hear testimony in the government's attempt to show Bishop James Cannon, Jr., and his former secretary-treasurer, conspired to violate the Federal Corrupt Practices Act in 1928, as charged in an indictment returned against them. The maximum penalty upon conviction of this charge is two years in prison and $10,000 fine.

PINCHOT'S VOICE POOR

Pittsburgh, Apr. 10.—Governor Pinchot's opening blast in his campaign for the Republican senatorial nomination was not broadcast over station KDKA last night because reception of the Governor's voice was poor, Frank Conrad, assistant manager of the radio station admitted today. Conrad explained the chief executive's voice "came in so very poor that in fairness to him and to ourselves we decided not to broadcast the speech."

ARREST TWO FOR MURDER

Philadelphia, Apr. 10.—Accused of the brutal attack and murder of Mrs. Sarah Grantland, 60 year old scrub woman, whose battered body was found last week on a rubbish heap, two men were in police custody today. Authorities allege that the men confessed the crime.

RETURN MURDER VERDICT

Hazleton, Apr. 10.—Official verdicts of murder and suicide were returned by the Coroner today in the death of Christ Sauters, 36, a coal miner, and Mrs. Edith Ortman, 36, a widow, at whose home Sauters boarded. Sauters killed the woman and then ended his own life with the same rifle. A daughter, Florence Ortman, 18, said she was unable to ascribe any reason for Sauters' act. He had been living at Mrs. Ortman's house since her husband died, two years ago, and was said to have been attentive to the woman.

MILK PRODUCERS WORRIED

Harrisburg, Apr. 10.—Faced with the loss of their markets, almost 600 Cumberland County farmers today had asked the Hershey Chocolate Corporation to reconsider its ultimatum that unless the State Board revises its recent price fixing order the Corporation will purchase its milk outside the state after April 14.

After hearing T. N. Hershey, head of the farm and dairy department of the chocolate corporation, re-affirm the company's stand that lowered prices in other states gave its competitors an undue advantage, the farmers adopted the following resolution:

"That T. N. Hershey ask his superiors to reconsider the order they sent out to stop buying milk April 14 but to continue to buy for the month of April and if at the end of this period they have lost money to report back to the Milk Control Board."

HIGH SCHOOL OPERETTA TO BE PRODUCED IN MAY

Will Be Given On Evenings Of May Third and Fourth

"OH, DOCTOR!" IS TITLE

"Oh, Doctor!" has been chosen as the annual Bristol high school operetta to be presented on Thursday and Friday evenings, May 3 and 4. The cast and also the choruses are already rehearsing in preparation for the production.

The play will, this year as last, be produced entirely by school talent. Members of the faculty are coaching the cast, directing the choruses, and making the scenery.

"Oh, Doctor!" takes place at the famous Drinkwater Sanitarium near the Mexican Border. The play portrays life at the sanitarium upon the arrival of Dr. Drinkwater's granddaughter, who has come in order to fulfill a phrase of her grandmother's will. However, a general mix-up ensues concerning this very granddaughter, and, after much intrigue and mirth, the mystery clears, leaving a happy ending for all.

LAST CALL FOR LIBERTY BONDS

Holders of Fourth Liberty Loan Bonds are advised that the time limit to exchange these bonds for ten-year 3 1/2% treasury bonds expires at midnight Thursday, April 12th. Fourth Liberty Loan Bonds with the check letter J. K. A. and the number ending in 9, 9 or 1 have been called by the Government and must be turned in not later than midnight April 12th.

Travel Club Gardeners To Hear Illustrated Talk

The Travel Club gardeners will open their 1934 season with an illustrated lecture in the club home, Friday at three p. m.

The speaker, a prominent garden club lecturer is J. S. Mattis, of Philadelphia, whose topic will be "Spring, Summer and Autumn in the Flower Garden," and will cover the new annuals, the desirable perennials, shrubs, and roses. There will also be a talk on the Dutch elm disease, a disease imported in a shipment of logs from the Netherlands, which is menacing the elms.

April 13th is a day set apart by the State of Pennsylvania as bird day. A member of the club will give a short talk on conservation of the feathered friends.

Flower lovers of Bristol and vicinity are invited to attend.

BOY SCOUT COUNCIL TO MEET IN MORRISVILLE

Birthday Celebration To Be Held Saturday Afternoon And Evening

SEVENTH ANNIVERSARY

MORRISVILLE, Apr. 10.—The seventh birthday of the Bucks County Boy Scout Council has been shifted from Newtown to Morrisville. It was only after a very careful consideration of the measles epidemic in Newtown; that the County Seat officials found it advisable to make the change. Although the number of new cases in Newtown has decreased, it was the possible carrying of the disease to other communities, that guided the leaders in their decision. The Bucks County Council had made every effort to co-operate with the 25th Newtown Anniversary Committee to stage their seventh birthday in the community. It is going to be a keen disappointment to not only the Boy Scout Organization, but also to the citizens of Newtown.

The affair will take place on Saturday.

Morrisville has stepped forward, and is shouldering the task of entertaining on very short notice. Scout Commissioner William Burgess in cooperation with Burgess Thomas B. Stockham, past president of the Bucks County Council, have rallied the support of local leaders. The change is Morrisville involved the securing of new sites for all of the Annual Day activities.

The different program events will be conducted on a new site schedule. The Bucks County appearance contest, and national Boy Scout appearance contest will be conducted on Crown street between Palmer and Franklin streets, under the supervision of Scoutmaster Clarence Hawk of Doylestown No. 1. The exhibition drill will be conducted by Deputy Commissioner S. A. Miller, of South Langhorne, on Stockham avenue, between Palmer and Franklin streets. The 1934 Bucks County-Rexcraft county championship bugling contest will be conducted in the basement of the Episcopal Church across from the Morrisville Community House, by Scoutmaster Charles Clickner, of Newtown. The above contests will start at 2 p. m. and conclude no later than 6:30. All competitors are to report to the above leaders in the assigned areas as early as possible.

Beginning at 3 p. m. and running until 5:30 p. m. in the Auditorium of the Morrisville Community House; the 1934 Scoutcraft championship eliminations in craftsmanship, concentration, signaling, nature, rocker race, compass and caterpillar race will be conducted. Two of the events are fun events as Scouting definitely stands for organized play. Scoutmaster Edwin Bair, of New Hope, will direct the eliminations.

Sakima Edward Baumeister of So. Langhorne has sent out a call for all members of the Camp Brotherhood to gather at 5:15. Owing to the sudden change in the place of the birthday gathering, it will be necessary to send out a special notice to the Alapeu Lodge members, as to just where the members will have their annual dinner. For the entertainment of the boys, and their leaders; Skipper Robert F. Brenner of the "Rainbow Clipper of Crocydon," will be showing a number of moving pictures in the Community House Auditorium at 8 p. m. The movies will include: a comedy reel, "The Phony Ghost"; two reels of travelogue, "Scenes from the Canadian National Steamship Company"; and one educational picture, "The Panama Canal." The movies, as well as all of the activities of Boy Scout Day are free to everyone. The public is urged to attend as many of the different events as they can arrange to enjoy.

The Rally in the evening in the Community House Auditorium will be led by Scout Commissioner William Burgess. The program includes stunts by Honor Camp Buccoo Troops, the announcement of the championships, and the presentation of the Doylestown Rotary Club Pack appearance cup, the Bristol Exchange Club troop appearance cup, the Quakertown Chamber of Commerce ship appearance cup, and the Bristol Rotary Club stunt cup. Under the clever direction of Scoutmaster Harold D. R. Crum-

ENACT ORDINANCE OKAYING SUNDAY FOOTBALL, BASEBALL

Games Permitted Between Two and Six o'Clock In Afternoons

FIX LICENSE FEE, TOO

If Admission Is Charged A License Fee Must Be Paid

Borough council, last night, enacted an ordinance legalizing playing of baseball and football in Bristol on Sundays, between the hours of two and six p. m., providing a fee of $5 is paid when the game is played in enclosed grounds and a fee of $1.00 for games played in unenclosed grounds, where an admission is charged.

Licenses for all such games will be issued by the Superintendent of Public Safety.

Application for such license must be accompanied by an affidavit setting forth the kind of game to be played, the place where it is to be held, and whether or not that place is enclosed.

The Superintendent of Public Safety must report to Borough Council at each regular meeting the licenses so issued, together with the name of the licensee and the place so licensed and the date of the issuing of such licenses.

Contributions solicited directly or indirectly or permitted by the person, co-partnership, association or corporation or its or their servants, agents or employees, at or in connection with any such game shall within the meaning of this ordinance constitute an admission charge and all baseball or football games conducted, staged or engaged in on Sundays between the hours stated, at which such collections are solicited or permitted shall be unlawful unless a license shall be obtained and license fee paid.

Violation of the ordinance imposes a penalty of $10 after summary conviction. If the fine is not paid five days must be served in the Bucks County jail.

Sunday playing of football and baseball was approved by the electors of Bristol Borough at the general election held November 7, 1933. Electors in all six wards voted approval and the majority in Bristol was 2,382, 2,920 voted yes and 538 voted no.

Contract for collection of dry garbage was awarded to T. Ostroskey, for the sum of $1800 for the year. This is the same price as paid last year. Ostroskey was the only bidder.

Councilman Winslow reported that he had had many complaints about bootleg garbage collectors. He asked that the police arrest any others than the authorized collector, caught collecting the garbage.

A donation of $50 each to the Sons of Veterans and American Legion was made to defray Memorial Day expenses.

Police committee reported 15 arrests during the month. Eight of the prisoners were discharged, five committed and two held for court.

One hundred and seventy-three lodgers were given shelter. Ten arc and eight incandescent lights were reported out.

Councilman Pfeifer presented a communication from Nicholas Leon, 526 Adams street, requesting a street light in front of his property and also an available sewer connection. Street light was ordered but it was stated that at the present time the sewer is not available for this property.

When Councilman Winter presented the ordinance legalizing football and baseball on Sunday, objection to the license fee of $5 for every game, as originally provided for, was voiced by Joseph Foster and Dennis Roche, fourth ward. "Some of those games don't collect $5," said Mr. Foster.

Fish and Game Association Plans Interesting Meeting

Bristol Fish and Game Association will hold an important meeting tonight in the Elks' home at eight o'clock. President William Warner and a special committee have arranged to have something unique in the form of entertainment for those present.

S. E. Cramer, superintendent of the southeast district of Board of Game Commissioners, will address the audience and give some timely information to the sportsmen. Game Warden Fretz is another who is scheduled to speak on the program.

Moving pictures on small animal life and the various fowl who prey on small animals will be shown together with a reel of hunting pictures taken by Theodore Megargee, a local sportsman.

The committee extends an invitation to all members and any other person who is interested to attend this gathering.

FIRST WARD BASEBALL

All first ward boys interested in baseball are asked to report at Leedom's field tomorrow afternoon at four o'clock.

HUMAN GUINEA PIGS

Twelve of the 800 convicts in the Colorado penitentiary soon are to risk their health and lives in a gamble for liberty.

It will not be the guns of guards they have to fear though, but a preventive tuberculosis serum.

The serum was developed by Dr. H. J. Cooper and associates at the National Jewish hospital in Denver. Extensive tests have been made upon animals of various kinds. It apparently gave the animals protection against tuberculosis infection.

In order to remove all possible doubt as to its efficacy it was necessary to try it out on human subjects. Until this was done and the effects studied, there could be no scientific judgment of its merits.

A request was made of Governor Johnson to permit the experiments to be made on volunteer convicts, with pardons their reward in the event they survived the tests. After assuring himself that no legal bars stood in the way, the Governor gave his permission. Selection of those for the experiments now is being made. The convicts chosen will be fully acquainted with the risk they will assume. They will sign a statement releasing from liability the governor and all others associated with the plan, should damage to the health of the subjects result.

The experiments will mean much to these convicts, but, should they prove successful in proving the serum to be a preventive, they will mean life to millions of other persons.

TROUBLESOME TAX

State sales taxes have proved to be state tariffs with reverse English. They bring in the revenue but they place a premium on buying from another state which imposes a lower tax or no tax at all. The sales tax is a boon to the mail order house.

This defect in the sales tax as a state levy was uncovered by Congress during the debate on a bill which would confer upon the states the right to levy these taxes on goods in interstate commerce.

No method has been devised by which the state can collect a sales or excise tax on goods shipped by mail, freight or express from a mail order house in another state, or on a truck shipment crossing state lines and not sold through the usual retail channels or on the purchases made just across the state line and brought over to evade the tax.

Business in states imposing sales taxes will operate under a handicap as long as there is no equality or universality of taxation.

Few taxes are more unpopular with the small businessman than is the sales tax. They complicate his bookkeeping and eat into his profits and now he learns that they give the mail order house another advantage over him.

They say Will Hays may lose his job of keeping the movies pure, but evidently he has been on strike a long time anyway.

No one seems to have thought to ask the husband of that woman janitor who won $150,000 sweepstakes prize how he felt over the lucky break.

The women of Brazil must have been using their votes to cause Brazilian politicians trouble. A movement to repeal woman suffrage has been launched.

NEWS GLEANINGS FROM THE ADJACENT TOWNS; SOME INTERESTING BITS OF DAILY FICTION; SOCIAL EVENTS

HOLLYWOOD, Calif.—America's champion writer of freak fan letters is at last to be investigated by the postal authorities.

The sender, presumably a woman, but who always signs herself only with a silver star, has, for months, deluged Greta Garbo and all friends of the Swedish actress with an extraordinary collection of documents.

Lately, she has been trying to get a message to Greta through Carl Brisson and it was the Paramount star who finally requested the postal authorities to take a hand.

Brisson's letters are typical of the communications sent by this unbalanced fan mind. They come registered, special delivery from New York and each has a fake return address. The first page starts off:

"Under penalty of death, do not fail to read this in its entirety." In the middle of each succeeding page is a scrap from a poem. The writer always concludes: "This is the synopsis of the world's greatest scenario that could be played only by the world's greatest actress. Don't fail to get this to Greta Garbo."

It will be on the threats and the fake return addresses that the postal authorities will base their investigation.

The new censor-board in Spokane, Washington, touched off a powder keg when some of its members were instrumental in having "Nana" barred from showing in the northern city. Theater-men leaped to the defense of the picture and now Samuel Goldwyn has hired a battery of attorneys to fight the ruling.

One of the lady objectors to the film is credited with this extraordinary statement: "Anna Sten should have suffered more to pay for her wrongdoings. Death was not enough."

Ye Gods! What next?

An amusing slant on Will Rogers may be had from an anecdote that the comedian told on himself this week. During his last trip to the Orient, Will's plane came down near Bangkok to refuel. An English family was sight-seeing at the field, and a little girl came out to get the pilot to sign her autograph book. After a doubting appraisal, she then approached the comedian. He wrote:

"Will Rogers, U. S. A." The little girl frowned and objected that the U. S. A. was a pretty big place, and didn't Will have an address.

"I guess I must have some vanity," reminisced Rogers, "for I said: 'you wait a month and write me at that address. If I get the letter I'll write you back'."

Sure enough, on Will's return to Beverly Hills, he found a message from the little girl.

"And I was awful glad to get that letter," chuckled the comedian. "I'd been guilty of some bragging and naturally I wanted to make good."

There's a tragic sequel to my story about the police log which saved Gloria Stuart from being bitten by a rattlesnake. Gloria telephones from Morro Bay that the dog, after apparently escaping harm in the battle, suddenly developed convulsions and died. The brave animal was buried with honors.

The spectacular success of "The Carioca" has inspired Lou Brock to create another dance for his new picture, "Down to Their Last Yacht." It will be called "The South Sea Bolero," but it will not be the usual weaving hip dance of tradition. Rhythmic movements of the arms and hands will be featured.

The R. K. O. executive is sending Spencer Horsley to the South Seas to bring back 12 or 15 of their best dancers for the film. He'll also use Hollywood chorus girls in an American version.

SYNOPSIS

Aboard the S.S. "Navarre," bound for America, Michael Lanyard, reformed "Lone Wolf" of crookdom, is reunited with his son whom he thought dead. Lanyard is disappointed to learn that the boy, traveling under the name "Maurice Parry," is a thief, but he hopes his son is in the hands of Crozier, lovely daughter of the wealthy Mrs. Fay Crozier, will prove a good influence. Maurice steals the famous Habsburg emeralds from Mrs. Crozier, substituting counterfeiters. Lanyard retrieves the gems for Fay. In a bridge game, Lanyard exposes two gangsters, "Jack Knife" Anderson and "English Archie," for cheating his son. Detective Crane warns Lanyard against their revenge. Soon the emeralds are stolen again and Lanyard is suspected when M. Plon, French detective, and Captain Pascal find the jewels in Lanyard's trunk, only to learn that they are the counterfeits. Lanyard is puzzled, for he had returned these to Maurice. Just then, the pursuer appears with the emeralds, which were carelessly wrapped and left on his desk with instructions that they be deposited in the safe for Mme. Crozier. Despite the evidence, Lanyard cannot conceive of Maurice planting the zircons (false gems) in his trunk. He fears that Maurice went to his (Lanyard's) cabin, saw the emeralds in the trunk and replaced the jewels with the zircons to save his father. That night a thug comes to Lanyard's stateroom and, at the point of a gun, informs him that he is to steal the emeralds and split fifty per cent with "Jack Knife" Anderson and "English Archie." Maurice appears, his face masked. He knocks the gunman out, planting a pearl necklace—stolen from Mme. Boyce, a fellow-passenger—in the thug's pocket just as the police arrive.

CHAPTER XVIII

When the dinner-hour in the salle-a-manger drew to its close, the third night out, and would waxed at the continued failure of Maurice to show up at the chief engineer's table, Lanyard was somewhat discontented to find Fenno Crozier sounding his mind.

"If it's just paternal solicitude that makes you so remote tonight, M. Lanyard—well, I can tell you it's no use your keeping an eye on the companionway; your lamb isn't mixing with us plain people this evening."

"No? Where, then—since you apparently know—is that innocent straying?" Fenno put a crinkle in her pretty eyebrows.

"That's not bad, you know—the circumstances you don't know considered. Maurice is dining tonight in the Ritz cafe, with Tess Boyce and her gang. Just a little dinner the lady's throwing in his honor, for saying her pearls from that sneak-thief."

"Indeed?" Lanyard smiled against the grain: what you would, the sheer impudence of the scamp's accepting such a testimonial was irresistible. "Gratitude," he pensively submitted, to cover his thoughts, "is a devastating sentiment."

"You don't think so? Not really?"

"But think what obligations it imposes on its object!"

"Oh, I shouldn't fret about that young man, if I were his father. I fancy you'd find he knew, his way about."

"I well believe you," Lanyard soberly agreed. "Then too—even if the lady is by any chance unmarried at the moment—a winner of the Calcutta Sweepstakes is after all tame game for her guns."

"I'm not so sure," Fenno with fine inconsistency confessed a "winner." "The boy is sweet, you know."

"It takes more than personal charm to foot a charge account at Cartier's."

"But even the hard-boiled have their caprices, monsieur!"

"For ropes of pearls, I grant you. But assuming Maurice were ever to settle down and turn his gifts to some account—"

"He will. He's clever."

"—his honest earnings of the next several years would improbably pay for the least of Madame Boyce's marriage trophies."

"Honest, monsieur?"

"As distinguished from such windfalls as a lucky sweepstakes ticket."

Fay Crozier here rose to the lure of a name caught by an ear casually at liberty.

"What about the Boyce, Lanyard?" she asked.

"We were discussing her gratitude to Maurice for making her latest jewel robbery a good press story."

"Her last was a flop; that's a fact. But if you expect to find her fact, but if you expect to find her man gratitude in that creature—"

"Figure to yourself that one has yet to have the experience of her acquaintance."

Fay Crozier stared.

"Do you mean to tell me she isn't a customer of Delibes'?"

"She might have been, madame, but not on her terms. She approached us a few years ago—it was the younger Delibes, I believe, whom she interviewed—with proposals plain enough and much to the point: we were to charge her current fiancé half as much again as our set prices, remit the excess tax privately to her, and agree to buy back everything on demand at the proper selling price less our profit."

"She was with difficulty persuaded that she had come to the wrong shop, and took her custom, one assumes, to houses less scrupulous."

"It sounds lifelike," Fay Crozier made a scandalized face. "The things they tell about that one!"

"Madame may save her blushes. One has heard enough from other sources to accept what she implies without detailed substantiation."

"But of course everybody knows what the woman is. I only hope you won't let her get her hooks into that fine boy of yours."

"It had already occurred to me to wonder if it would be wise to breathe a word of caution—and then to reflect that the young man, prone to resent being talked to for their own good, Madame Boyce, furthermore, hasn't any name for wasting time on small fry."

"Still, and for all that, the new-found father in Lanyard fretted. The man even fumed in moderation. It wasn't enough that he should have Maurice's gay reputation of his guidance to discourage him. Maurice's infatuation with a rogue's life and contempt of all consequences, his delight in such proofs of cleverness as had, for example, turned his tight squeak of last night into a coup-de-farce—now Lanyard had to be reminded that the society of Tessie Boyce and her circle was the worst in the world for a mettlesome youngster.

And nothing to be done about it—unless, perhaps, by means so subtle that the boy would never surmise his father's hand in them. . . .

Lanyard thoughtfully glanced at this question, and then, thoughtlessly, at the sedate young person on his left. And perceiving how close was the association of ideas, how faith that the son would find salvation only as his father had, in love of a right woman, was welded to the wish that Maurice might be happy enough to find his in the love of Fenno, Lanyard smiled to himself the dim smile of a resigned man—only to see it surprised by brown eyes that were manifestly no less alert because pensive.

"Yes, monsieur? You were thinking—"

"That I find myself with rather a troublesome problem on my hands."

Fenno's face was sympathetic, the small nod she gave intent. "I know."

"I am sure you do."

"Clever hands," the girl mused, looking at Lanyard's,—"artistic, yet capable. I don't believe they often fail you."

"But deplorably unpracticed in the technique of paternity," Lanyard protested,—"giving me to wonder where to turn for instruction, Fenno—to your mother or you."

"To me, monsieur!"

"You find that an astonishing suggestion? But consider that she too is a headstrong infant—and how well you manage her!"

"Ah, but Mother doesn't know that."

"More proof that yours are defter hands than mine at such work. True, they have had more experience."

"And an easier job. Fay, you know, with all her nonsense, is what you are fond of calling yourself, old school—far easier to handle than the professionally unillusioned children of my generation."

"And Maurice's."

"Yes, but all the same—Maurice isn't typical, you know. He isn't hard-shell, really. He only likes to think he is."

"So much the more reason, then, to worry about him—so vain, so naive, so susceptible to flattery."

"You're not seriously afraid Tess Boyce will make a dead set for him, are you, and turn his head?"

"Not that, so much as the associations of her class. One sees too much of that sort in Paris. No nation but America ever turned out such hordes of chronic moral invalids—money-shoed as surely as soldiers are shell-shocked. The atmosphere they buy for themselves isn't calculated to foster the belief in young men that they must work for the right to loaf. Then too, the crust of society is always thinnest beneath the class that knows no aim but pleasure, no pleasure but in spending."

"The crust above the underworld, you mean, monsieur?"

"Out of which I hoisted myself by my boot-straps," Lanyard pleasantly reminded the girl. But he trifled with those sharp wits at his peril, and knew it. Fenno's next question might well be: "You have reason, then, to fear the allure of the underworld for Maurice?" or something much to that effect, anyway. "And in which," Lanyard pursued, "I still have ill-wishers who would welcome the chance to strike at me through my son."

"I understand," Fenno quietly replied. The trouble was, Lanyard couldn't be sure she didn't understand more than he cared to have her. He found the grave clear gaze she gave him disquieting. Yet she said no more than, after a moment and in a lowered voice: "Leave Maurice to me."

He answered in an open stare: "You mean that?"

Her head described a slow and graceful bend.

"I think you know how happy I would be to believe that what you suggest—"

"You may, monsieur," Fenno got up in response to signals from her mother, but delayed to let her pass—delayed with veiled eyes and a finger lightly pinning Lanyard's sleeve. "He's such a lamb," she said for his ear only, but without looking up. "How can one help wanting to save him?"

Deep silken lashes lifted to disclose a smile at once intimate and enigmatic; but Fenno was off in her mother's wake before Lanyard would ask from whom Maurice, as the girl saw him, wanted saving, from the Boyce or from himself. And Lanyard finished his own dinner and several ruminative turns round the promenade deck without arriving at any satisfactory reading of the riddle.

In Spring a Young Man's Fancy

IN SPRING the whole world feels young once more.

It is the time of new birth . . . of rebirth . . . of a revival of old longings and the stirring of new desires.

The spirit of man and woman is always young in Spring. You long for new scenes . . . for new clothes . . . for new surroundings. A tradition, old as civilization, warns us that if we don't share in this newness, we will suffer through the year from a feeling of defeat, of bitterness, of frustration, of old age creeping upon us prematurely.

Now is the time to buy something new for the house . . . for yourself . . . for those around you. Now is the time to plan ahead for a vacation . . . for a trip, no matter how short a distance it may be away from home . . . for a car, a boat, or perhaps new fishing tackle.

It is a stirring time, this Spring; and the advertisements are full of interesting news of things you need. You will find it pays to read them carefully—to be sure of satisfaction—to make your dollars go farther.

ALL ABOUT THE RADISH

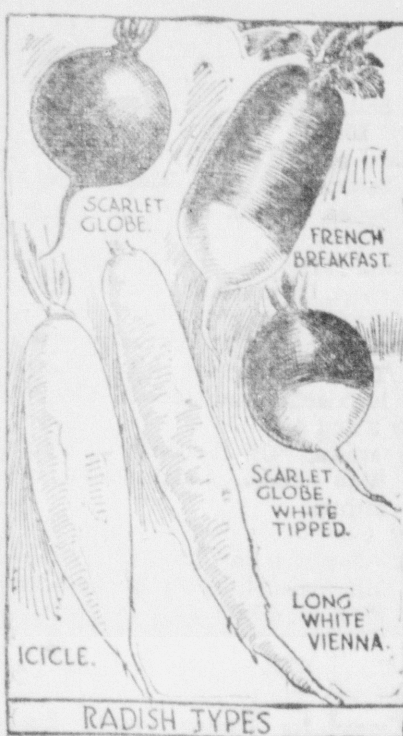

The most popular small garden vegetable is undoubtedly the radish. This is so, perhaps, because of its tart freshness that epitomizes the spirit of early spring, and it is so because this hardy little relish can be planted as soon as the ground is workable, and harvested three weeks later.

Plant the radish in the full sun on a plot of ground of light and rich texture with not too great a content of nitrogen. The olive and globe-shaped varieties are the earliest. A good thing to remember with the earlier varieties is that the later they are picked the more pithy and strong they will be—pull and eat them as soon as they mature.

The general rule is that the longer they take to mature, the hotter the flavor; they also take on an oblong shape like the carrot. Most of the summer varieties are like this, among them being Strassburg and Chartier.

Icele is an exception among the summer varieties, and is rather mild. This question of mildness has been the problem of seedsmen in developing new varieties, and it has been met by shortening the season. The early globe type is noted for its mildness, and with a succession of plantings every week in the spring, a continuous crop may be had. They cannot be grown on into the summer.

Radishes used as table decorations may be grown in red, yellow or white colors and are very effective for this purpose. The fall varieties should not be neglected, for they will supply a quantity of huge, mild edibles far into the winter season.

A common fault in planting radishes is to sow them too thickly. The best results will be obtained by thinning them to 2 inches apart in the row. This crowding is especially detrimental where the earliest crop is desired. Plants should be thinned out as soon as they appear above the surface. With the larger varieties, 4 inches of space is needed. Remember, they are one of the first spring vegetables, and can be sown as soon as the ground is workable.

Glowing Ball radish, a round, early red variety, received a gold medal in the All-America trials of new varieties for 1934. It represents the latest improvement in the quick growing, mild, round type for earliest planting.

YOUNG DUCHESS OF WESTMINSTER WEARS CREATION BY CHANEL

By Nadia De Beaud

(I. N. S. Fashion Correspondent)
PARIS—(INS)—The young Duchess of Westminster took advantage of the mild, spring weather to appear in one of Chanel's latest creations, showing the new materials of this season. She wore a green printed crepe dress, the design giving the impression of heavy interwoven threads, with a green woolen coat and a green straw hat, the brim of which was rolled on each side, giving a boat shape. Right on front, against the low crown, a huge, carnation-like flower was placed, made of the same material as the gown. The coat also was lined of this material.

I realized that at a distance, unless a person really knows, these new prints are so cleverly designed that they create an illusion of depth.

DESCRIBES SOME OF GARMENTS PURCHASED BY THE LADY MENDEL

By Nadia De Beaud

(I. N. S. Fashion Correspondent)
PARIS—(INS)—Having spent the Winter in America, Lady Mendel, who is better known in the world of business as Miss Elsie de Wolfe, upon her arrival in the French capital betook herself to the grands couturiers to replenish her wardrobe.

I saw her walking down the Champs Elysees one warm afternoon in a long suit of navy blue jersey, the coat of which had a small stand-up military collar, closed in the front by gold motives shaped like dumbbells. The reverses of the cuffs and the belt were finished off by the same pugilistic ornaments. Under this a blouse of white lingerie is worn. One of the distinctive novelties of the clothes is the utilization of unusually shaped buttons and extraordinary clasps as both ornaments and essential parts of a costume.

TWILIGHT LEAGUE ORGANIZES FOR YEAR

Organized for the tenth successive season, the Bristol Twilight League elected the following officers for the ensuing year: President, David Landreth; vice president, Francis G. Ellis; secretary and treasurer, Thomas M. Juno. These officers served in the same capacity last season.

Nine teams applied for admittance into the circuit last night in the office of D. Landreth Seed Company where the meeting was held. The same six teams that held the franchise last year were given first preference and all consented to join the league. They are: Damp Wash, Independents, Edgely, St. Ann's, Hibernians, and the Jefferson A. C. Other teams that applied for admittance were Washington A. C., Knights of Columbus, and the Young Italians.

The schedule will open on April 30th, with the Hibernians playing the Independents. On May 1, the Damp Wash meet the Edgely Braves, while on the third night, the St. Ann's team will play Jefferson. Francis G. Ellis was appointed to draw up a schedule.

It was unanimously decided to have the teams finish every game of the schedule in both halves. The playoff will consist of three games.

The names of "Eddie" Roe and Joe Riola were submitted as umpires and approved by the league. The circuit decided to use the American League ball and adhere to American League rules.

Joseph Britton, Fred Hibbs and Patsy Moffo were appointed on the Rules and Regulation Committee.

The next meeting of the circuit will be held on Monday, April 16th, in the same place.

Representatives present last night were: Edgely, Fred Hibbs and John Wolvin; Independents, Joseph Rubino and James Stallone; St. Ann's, Michael DeRisi and Patsy Moffo; A. O. H., Victor Potts and James Dolan; Jefferson A. C., Felix Tomlinson and Joseph Britton; Damp Wash, Israel Siroff and William Wallace.

Speaker Rainey was confident that Dr. Wirt would not be able to back up the charges made in his statement which J. H. Rand, Jr., read before the House Interstate Commerce Committee during a hearing on the stock market bill.

The demand for seats at the hearing caused the committee to abandon its earlier plan of avoiding "a circus." The largest caucus room in the palatial new House office building was set aside for the hearing.

Members of Congress were deluged for tickets to the event, but Bulwinkle declined to yield to this pressure. Instead, he planned to hold two rows of seats for members of Congress and their wives.

"they have difficulty in collecting enough to pay an umpire."

Councilman Roche was of the same opinion and thought the license fee should be reduced, so as to permit amateurs to play the game.

Councilman Fry stated that he had attended some games where the collection amounted to only $1.25.

Councilman Warner thought the license fee should be abolished altogether. "Baseball is a great game and no charge should be made," he said.

A compromise was reached when Councilman Morris offered an amendment to the original ordinance whereby $5 fee is paid for games played on enclosed grounds and $1 for games played on unenclosed grounds. There are no enclosed grounds in Bristol.

Councilmen absent were Wichser, Schmidt, Howard.

IF YOU HAVEN'T A TELEPHONE IN YOUR HOME

In a few days a Bell Telephone representative will call on you. He will explain why you should have a telephone and how surprisingly little it costs. He will take only a few minutes of your time. You can rely on his courtesy and personal interest and depend on his judgment as a telephone expert.

We hope that you will be able to act on his suggestion. No item of home equipment, we know, can add more to the security and happiness of the whole family than a telephone.

Marvelous Mermaids

By BURNLEY

DOROTHY WILL DEFEND HER DIVING TITLE, AND LENORE WILL TRY TO CRACK A FEW MORE MARKS IN THE INDOOR NATIONALS AT CHICAGO THIS WEEK--

BEGINNING tomorrow, the leading mermaids of the nation will vie for the national indoor swimming and diving titles, which are to be put on the block during the next four days at Chicago. All the outstanding aquatic luminaries of the fair sex will be on hand, and a number of record-breaking performances can be confidently predicted.

Lenore Kight, smiling speedster from Homestead, Pa., will lead the assault on the swimming standards, and if she gets strong competition from Alice Bridges or Olive McKeen, the present fastest mermaid should add some new world marks to her fast growing collection of records.

The versatile Florida "fish," Katherine Rawls, will be competing in several events as usual, and will attempt to duplicate her last year's feat of rolling up the highest point score of any competitor.

In the diving events the favorite, naturally, will be blonde Dot Poynton, Olympic diving queen, who will defend her national honors in the ten-foot springboard event.

The Rawls kid is expected to furnish Dorothy with her chief competition, but if the blonde eye-fall from Los Angeles hasn't neglected her training, she should retain her laurels without any trouble. Dorothy has repeatedly demonstrated that she is the top gal in all the diving events when she does her stuff, and she always furnishes the big thrill of the national meets with her graceful gyrations from the springboard.

Miss Charlotte Epstein, of the Women's Swimming Association of New York, will lead the usual band of crack metropolitan mermaids in an attempt to carry off the team honors in the Windy City events.

Little Mary Hoerger, nine-year-old child diving prodigy, who finished fourth in the outdoor springboard diving, will be doing her best competing against such queens of the springboard as Dorothy Poynton and Katherine Rawls.
